The supposition here conveyed, is that she must have died very soon. When found, she was resting upon fernal suggestion, he thinks, is abhorred, and he gives a fraternal exhortation thus:

"Do the Republican masses sympathize with this purpose, or with the desperate and devilish spirit in which it is prosecuted? We know they do not. They sympathize with neither. Let them, then, like good citizens and patriots, take the management of the Republican organization into their own hands, resolving, with equal carnesiness, that the Chicago Convention shall select a standard-bearer outside of the Republican ranks, and that it outside of the Republican ranks, and that it To this end it behooves every honest and enlightened member of the Republican party to exert his utmost influence. The rout of the Democracy, as well as the triumph of the Union, depends on its achievement.

The Opposition are fertile in inventions to defeat Douglas. They have tried abuse and clander, and have failed. They swear South that he is an anti-slavery man; that his doctrine leads to all the ends of Black Republicanism. They swear North that he is the very worst of pro-slavery men; that he is the head and front of the slave power. The party in Illinois to kill off Douglas, by adopting him as their candidate. It was the best to nominate the Little Giant of Illinois, while he differed with that distinguished states man upon the question of congressional intervention in the Territories, upon the subject of slavery, yet it was, after all, an abstraction. think his purpose was to damage both, and he succeeded in putting himself on record as a weak brother.

The object of the editor of the Courier and Enquirer was only to express his contempt of Bates. He had rather support Douglas outright. So the editor of the Journal almost prefers Seward to any Democrat; and Colonel Marshall wouldn't give the toes of a copper between Buchana and Fromont. We advise the editor of the Journal to confine his advice to his own party; to take care of the Baltimore Convention; the assembly at Charleston will not think much of his philosophy or advice. The enemies of Douglas need not quote the Cincinnati Commercial or Gazette either, and kindred anti-clavery sheets, against Douglas here in the South. Kentuckians, Democrats, don't heed

The editor of the Journal rallies his party for Saturday's election, and wants the rest of mankind to believe that the prosperity paper, in alluding to political matters in of the city is due to its Mayor and Council. Now, the opinion of sensible people is not so flattering to the powers that be anywhere. The sun rises and sets, and water runs down hill, whether the city authorities meet or not. The merchants, mechanics, the business and working men of Louisville, have had more to do with its prosperity than all the Councils. It takes but little wisdom to govern the world or a city; and it's well it does, or how would Louisville have got along?

Now, our opinion is, that whenever the Opposition want a party race, and will have one, by all means accommodate them; vote early and vote fast. We don't think the Journal's party worth all the attention he pays to it. It is pretty much confined to the nation of Louisville, and it hasn't done much for its credit here. It hasn't saved the Union. As a party, it is aimply of no account, and had just as well enbside. It has had city spoils for a long time, and it has not paid expenses.

In our opinion, the people are very much disposed to elect good city officers, without much regard to loyalty to party; and in that they are right. This city has been desperately political and patriotic; and it's all well enough, perhaps; but we had better attend to our own siness, and elect good officers, and take care | ton of the country afterward.

The editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Dem erat, who has sold out and gone to editing Black Republican paper, according to the New York Tribune, is The mar 2 Dange. Maryland and Douglas.

The Washington Constitution recently con-tained a letter on Maryland politics, which stated that from the State of Maryland Mr. Douglas will not have a single vote in favor of his nomination, and that the State is a unitagainst him. The Commercial of this city readily caught at this statement, and used it n an endeavor to discredit the truthfulness of ion were favorable to Donglas. We have before us the Baltimore Dispatch, of the 31st alt., with a leader of great force, and written by a master hand. Our correspondent is sustained by the Dispatch. We give a portion of its powerful leader: We are invited to make these remarks by reading a letter in the Constitution of Wednes-day last upon the subject of "Maryland Poli-tios." It purports to give "the true com-plexion of polities" here, and is notoriously untrue in every statement from beginning to end Its design is to flatter, as usual, the Ex-cutive head and read to revengeful eyes Julge Douglas' approaching fate at Charle

But, like all political gipsies, the writer i

"His lighting palm betrays h's turn of Fa'e."
"From the State of Maryland Mr. Douglas will not have a single vote in favor of his nom-nation. The State is a unit against him." Now we do not hestlate a moment to say here is not a Democratic voter in Maryland who does not know the utter falsity of this un-blushing statement. Fortunately this is stated with such emphatic recklessness that it at once isproves itself and uncovers its motive to de eivo. The delegates from Maryland thurleston are all elected, and are well known tizeus, and their sentiments have been dis incily ascertained. We speak new of the Congressional delegates. We say it upon cer-ain information that a majority of the votes of Maryland at Charleston will, upon the first allot, be cast for Douglas.
Our State is entitled to eight votes in the ational Convention. The friends of Mr. bouglas have elected their delegates in the seconl, Third, Fourth and Fifth Congressional districts, and one in the Sixth District. The wo Senatorial votes are not counted for him, ret there is no one authorized to say they are gainst him. In the First Congressional Dis nict the result is not yet known. But this is confidently asserted, that not one delegate from Maryland is an Administration man, in the sense of supporting the present Government at Washington, or being subject to its influence—not one. But, on the contrary, the resolutions of our State Consention passed unanimals. f our State Convention, passed unanimously, ronounce a positive censure upon those who could proscribe Judge Douglas.—Cen. Truly yours,

The correspondents of the New York erald have been so uniformly anti-Douglas, ficr the example of the paper itself, that we read the following with some surprise, giving a cool view of the other side of the question Wassington, April 2, 1860.
It is generally understood that the commi

tee which meets here on the 5th will not take the responsibility of changing the place of meeting of the Democratic Convention from Charleston. They do not, however, doubt their power to do so, but consider it inexpe dient, in view of the arrangements already concluded, and in the absence of any general expression of opinion in favor of the change from the Southern delegates. The moeting on the 5th will therefore be unimportant.

Whilst the prominent position of Julge Douglas before the Convention naturally aincluded in the set of the convention of the particular in the prominent position of the particular in the prominent position of particular in the particular in the es him out as the object of attack on the part the Iricads of all the other less conspicuous indidates, his friends claim that the violence of these assaults simply prove his strength The expression of opinion against Douglas, or the part of the ultra Southern members of Con ress, is less important, when it is remembered hat it is the practice of the Southern States of to elect members of Congress as delegates. he dictation of members, therefore, is no calculated to have any weight with the delegates who regard themselves as occupying an independent position, and in many instances are the rivals of the sitting members for reelection to Congress. The delegates who have visited this city do not partake of the bitter hostility toward Douglas which the other Southern members exhibit. On the contrary, nearly all of them express the conviction that if Douglas' friends are true to him the South will yield. In the meantime, North Carolina and Georgia will probably go for him from the first. calculated to have any weight with the dele

The great fight in the termination will b on the platform. Whilst it is conceded that e Cincinanti platform, puro and simple, could be reaffirmed, Douglas' friends will insist that if this is done it must be viewed as a concession to him They say that the opposi-iou to Douglas is based upon the fact that he doos not consider that a Congressional slave code is constitutional for the Territories, and that the constitutional power of Territorial regislatures over the regulation of slavery, as all other property, is a judicial question. If because he holds these views he is to be struck down, they will insist that the platform shall contain a clear and direct exposition of the iews of his opponents—slave code and all. f not, then they hold he stands as well before ne South as any of his rivals. li is clear that not a single Northern State ould be carried upon a platform insisting up n the all-pervading existence of slavery as atural institution, which requires positive et e ment to forbid it, and which, spreading it to North pole of our Territories, extended a r, must continue, no matter what the wishe clank of a Cougressional slave code...the logical and proper conclusion insisted upon by southern men.

The mere question of the presidency, it is cratic party will find itself, for the first time n a ninority in both Houses of Congress pen and avowed secessionists and disunion as would be delighted with such a position of affairs, which would give the South a material cause for a secession movement; but the cool-or and reflecting men, both of the South and North, are alarmed at the prospect, and will hesitate ere they permit a mere personal lattred to Douglas to force them into a position where a Northern and a Southern confederacy where a Northern and a Sonthern consideracy becomes almost a foregone conclusion. The Northern States now represented in the Senate by Democrats are Oregon, California, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey Minnesota, and Onio. Of these Ohio has aleady cleeted a Republican in Pugh's plac can yeleansylvania elects next winter in Bigler clare: Indiana elects in place of the two si ing Senators, whose terms expire in 1861 and 805: New Jersey elects one, Miunesota one, and Oregon two. Add to these two Republians from kansas, and we find that unless th Democrats carry some of the Northern States ext fail, the only Northern States which will be represented by Democrats in the Senate will e, Illinois one and California one-in all two orats from the Northern States, thus giv ing the Republicans a majority In the Senate as well as the House. If this is to be the result of the next election the success of the Democratic nominee, unloss he can carry Pennsylvania, Illinois and Indiana, would In act be a defent—his victory would turn to tust and ashes on his lips, whilst the Repub-icans would have him tied town as securely in licans would have him tied town as securely in both houses as ever Gulliver was by the lilliputians in Swift's authentic narrative.

The statements that in any event on the adoption of any platform, however obnoxious. Donglas will rofuse to abids by the decision of the Convention, is false. He openly avows his determination to support the nominee, no matter who he may be; reserving to himself the same right exercised last Presidential election by Southern men of objecting to any portion of the platform he may not acquiesce in. At the last election many Southern States

no. At the last election many Southern States protested against the Pacific Railroad plank of the platform, but supported the nomines not withstanding. Precisely such will be Judge Donglas' course, and all speculations to the contrary are mero waste of time. He would necessary an application from no other party or cept of a nomination from no other party or et of men than the regularly organized Demo-ratio party to which he has always belonged, and to aid in building up and sustaining which he has devoted his whole brilliant public career from the time when, as the eloqueut champion of Gen. Jackson, he received the thanks of that illustrious man, down to the present moment, when he is engaged as eloquently and as courageously in battling for principles which will enable the Democracy of the country to maintain their position as a national tarty.

will enable the Democracy of the country to maintain their position as a national party, instead of, by the introduction of sectional doctrines and personal animosities, making it a mere geographical party, defeated, despised, and soon to be obliverated. If, on the contrary, it is conceded that this territorial question is a judicial and not a legislative subject; if the Democracy of 1800 are content to fight the battle upon the principles of 1836, the prospect will be far different. The Democracy of the North can successfully resist Seward and his irrepressible conflict. Abolitionism in all its phases will be vanquished. The contest now is to defeat the odious doctrine of Seward and Helper, and it is, thorefore, no time for the South to trifle with its safety and its interests, by striking down the Democracy of the ests, by striking down the Democracy North, who alone can stem the flood. We are called upon to record another cold-blooded and unnatural murder, which was perpetrated by an old mau named Gamble, living near Mitchell's Mills, in Nicholas county, upon his grandson, a young Mr. Meaks

From Washington WASHINGTON, April 5.—The Democratic National Committee met this morning. Twenty-seven States were represented. George A. Caldwell, of Ky., was chosen chairman protein, in the absence of Judge Smalley, and CL Villandigham, secretary. It was unanimously Pesolved, That it is inexpedient, under exist-war, for not showing her colors. At least, such is the allegation of the British side, though contralicted on ours. The British officers subsequently apologized. Thus the fact stands and has led to correspondence beween the two governments.

The Postoffice Committee finally decided this norming, to reduce the rates on the Pacific elegraph from $1 to $3, and Government aid from $50,000 to $40,000. The modifications will be gladly accepted by the Company, notwithstanding reports to the contrary. The principal parties have signified their acquies science already. The Pacific Railroad Con pany will meet to-morrow morning to deter mine in what manner the road shall be built whether by grants of land or money to indi viduals acting as commissioners, or incorpo rating a company.

The President to-day transmitted to the Senute, the recently concluded treaty of com-nerce with Honduras, which was referred to he Committee on Foreign Relations.

Though the Nicaraugua and Mexican treaes have received no attention from the Scu to for weeks past, it is the opinion of som enators that it is probable they will be revived Mr. Colfax, from the Bostoffice Committee, eported amendments to the Senate telegraphill.
